MGH Institute of Health Professions is a 41-year old graduate school founded by Massachusetts General Hospital that is educating tomorrow’s health care leaders. The Institute offers degrees in nursing, rehabilitation, and physician assistant studies.

The Institute provides free care to the community through its Dr. Charles A. and Ann Sanders IMPACT Practice Center. Under faculty supervision, multi-disciplinary teams of students provide free care to children and adults with chronic health conditions.

MGH Institute of Health Professions is a leader in:

- Educating its students to become exemplary leaders in health care for a diverse society
- Advancing innovative models of health professions education to improve health and health care
- Creating and translating knowledge to improve health through distinctive programs of research

All academic programs promote interprofessional teamwork through the school’s unique IMPACT Practice curriculum and offer personalized attention in a rigorous, collaborative learning environment that is driven by the faculty’s professional expertise and scholarly accomplishments. The academic experience is further enriched by the diversity of the students’ backgrounds and life experiences.

Entry-level and post-professional programs in nursing, communication sciences and disorders, occupational therapy, physical therapy, and physician assistant studies are among the Institute’s offerings. Other programs, including a PhD in Rehabilitation Sciences and a Master of Science in Health Professions Education, have been added in recent years to meet the rising demand for highly educated health care professionals, educators, and researchers.

The MGH Institute believes that knowledge begins with discovery through research. The Institute’s faculty engage in original clinical research, much of it collaborative and interprofessional, to improve the prevention, diagnosis, and treatment of human disorders and disabilities. Areas under study range from autism to dyslexia, from cancer-related fatigue to improving performance of students with reading challenges, and even how to help patients after face transplants.

The MGH Institute, which is accredited by the New England Association of Schools and Colleges, has 1,600 full- and part-time students. The IHP is the only degree-granting affiliate in Partners HealthCare, New England’s largest health care provider founded by Massachusetts General Hospital and Brigham and Women’s Hospital.

MGH Institute of Health Professions
A graduate school founded by Massachusetts General Hospital
MGH Institute of Health Professions, an independent affiliate of MGH and a member of Partners HealthCare, was founded in 1977 by the Massachusetts General Hospital to provide an outstanding graduate education in the health professions. Our programs include nursing, occupational therapy, physical therapy, physician assistant studies, speech–language pathology, genetic counseling, health professions education, and a PhD in rehabilitation sciences; several of these programs are top-ranked by U.S. News & World Report.

This Celebration of Community will highlight many of the critically important partnerships the IHP enjoys that contribute to the robust and vibrant community of the IHP. Together with these hospitals, schools, non–profits, organizations and associations, the faculty and students of the IHP are transforming the delivery of health care in addressing the prevention, diagnosis, and treatment of human disorders and disabilities.

We are especially pleased that Josh Kraft, Nicholas President and CEO of the Boys and Girls Clubs of Boston, will join us to speak to the importance of community partnerships. The Boys & Girls Clubs of Boston works tirelessly to ensure all young people in our community have the opportunity to realize their full potential. Their eleven area clubs are strategically located in neighborhoods with pronounced need throughout the city of Boston and Chelsea. They are committed to helping the young people in our community succeed academically, live healthy lifestyles and practice good citizenship.

We look forward to featuring live music by the Boys & Girls Club of Charlestown Band as well as food and refreshments inspired by the traditional tastes of New England.

We thank MGH IHP Trustee, Jim Canfield for chairing our Celebration of Community Corporate Committee. Members to date include Cindy Aiena, Dick Burtt, Peter D’Arrigo, Alison Geffin, Jerome Kyllingstad and John Wise.

Proceeds from the event will provide scholarship support for MGH Institute students, who typically graduate with an average educational debt over $100,000. Through scholarship funding, we are able to help ease the financial burden these students take on while pursuing their dreams of becoming leaders in their respective health care fields.
Join us for food, drink and music as we celebrate those community partners that contribute to the vibrancy of the IHP community. We are especially pleased to be joined by Josh Kraft, Nicholas President and CEO, Boys and Girls Clubs of Boston, who will speak to the importance of community partnerships. Mayor Martin J. Walsh is our invited guest.
